Airbox announces Runway HD for iPad

AIRBOX'S award winning navigation software is now available for the Apple iPad. Airbox Aerospace has just launched an upgraded version of its flight and navigation software for the Apple iPad. Named Runway HD, it is available for FREE download via iTunes. William Moore, co-founder and Technical Director of Airbox Aerospace Limited says that, "For the past 8 months our development team has been working hard on an iPad version of our software which fully utilises the iPad's potential. This brings a new dimension to the flight planning and execution process."

A number of features make Runway HD a very powerful tool for novice through to veteran pilots, including:

- Seamless and intelligent panning and zooming of maps.
- Flight planning and execution blended into one seamless process.
- Plan and fly with the chart you're most familiar with or fly with Airbox's acclaimed vector data.
- Use multiple charts together (with different scales).
- Live free Weather and NOTAM feeds (3G or Wifi connectivity required).
- ABX vector data as standard with worldwide coverage available.
- Geo-referenced flight guides and approach plates available.
- Top down and side profile views give terrain and airspace awareness in 3D.
- Plan & Fly; Create your route, check weather and NOTAMs, then fly it.

- File flight plans direct from the software.
- Download charts and other essential data direct to the software.
- All Airbox charts are now anti-aliased which makes them crystal clear on the iPad screen.

Runway HD is available as a FREE download from the App Store and will allow users to create detailed flight plans. To use as a fully functioning GPS, users need to create a subscription account at <http://users.airboxaero.com/> (choosing one of the available packages starting at £99 UK sterling per year). Mendelsohn Pilot Supplies, Airbox' distributor for Australia and NZ are able to offer the NAV pack unlock card directly by calling (04) 909 7356 making redemption of the code to unlock charts a quick process.

Tom Hedges, Airbox co-founder and Creative Director says that: "We at Airbox understand the requirements of pilots within the confines of the cockpit and as such have always tried to steer clear of over-complicating our software. The power of the iPad means we can now improve the user experience, limiting the need to remember where functions and features are hidden in the software and completely eradicating confusing or time-wasting processes. In short, Runway HD should be the easiest and most user intuitive aviation application available to pilots."

The App comes with ABX Vector mapping for New Zealand and Australia as standard and the initial NAV pack

AIRBOX NAV Packs for FREE

KiwiFlyer has 5 NAV Pack subscriptions valued at $189

each to give away to readers (you'll need your own iPad).

Thanks Airbox!

(available for purchase) contains 1:250,000 VNC charts for New Zealand. Users with an Airbox subscription can then activate and download any charts to the App that are registered to their account. Many other global chart options are available including charts for Australia, Brazil, South Africa, the United States, Europe, UK.

What you need, what you get

Hardware required is an iPad 1, 2 or 3.

ABX Vector mapping is included as standard and other charts are purchased as a NAV pack subscription. Airspace definitions are updated for free, every 30 days via download.

Price: Runway HD is FREE to download. The Navigation mode requires a chart subscription to operate.

Details and videos of the software's operation are available on <http://users.airboxaero.com>
